

Dear ISOLS Presenter,

Congratulations on having your work accepted for presentation at the upcoming of the 23rd Meeting of the International Society of Limb Salvage in Vienna, Austria, on September 23-26, 2026.

As you might know, Clinical Orthopaedics and Related Research[®] is the Official Journal of our Society. As we have in the past, ISOLS will publish a selected Proceedings in CORR[®] after this year's meeting, so that readers can benefit from the discoveries made by ISOLS members.

The collaboration with CORR also is important for us in ISOLS, since it allows a broader public to read our scientific work. We hope you will send your manuscript to CORR to be considered for review and possible publication. We seek the following article types:

- (1) Original clinical research (level IV or above; any randomized trials that began after January 1, 2017 must be registered prospectively in a clinical-trials registry),
- (2) Original laboratory research, or
- (3) Systematic review or meta-analysis (the latter must be limited to randomized trials); no book-chapter-style or selective review articles will be considered.

Before beginning to write up your manuscript for CORR, please have a look www.clinorthop.org, in the right-hand column under “CORR Author and Reviewer Tools.” There, you will find a downloadable “Quick-start Guide for CORR Authors,” which gives good instructions for how the journal presents clinical/laboratory research as well as systematic reviews and meta-analyses. In addition, under “CORR Author and Reviewer Tools” on the website, you’ll find links to article-building tools that walk authors through the creation of a manuscript; those tools also do a lot of the formatting for you, and so are worth using. Attached is an editorial that summarizes those reporting principles in an easy-to-follow way.

The deadline for submission of a full-length manuscript would be November 30, 2026.

There are no manuscript submission fees, and no article processing charges associated with publishing in CORR unless you want to publish open access (which is not required and is an option that only a small minority of authors choose.)

To send in your work, please go to <http://www.editorialmanager.com/corr/>,
Register > Log-in >
Submit manuscript > Select article type >
Select “Symposium / Proceedings / Workshop” >
Select “Section/Category” - select this year’s ISOLS proceedings.
Make sure to include all the forms specified in instructions to authors.

All manuscripts submitted to CORR will be evaluated according to the Journal’s peer-review and editorial process, and it is important that you know that this invitation to submit work does not guarantee publication.

Also, we will ask ISOLS members to serve as reviewers for papers in the selected Proceedings. We hope you are willing to do so.

We are very excited about this project, and I know you share my enthusiasm. The editor-in-chief of CORR, Seth Leopold, is likewise enthusiastic and supportive. Please direct any questions about the meeting to me, and any questions about the selected Proceedings or publication of your work in CORR to Dr. Leopold (sleopold@clinorthop.org).

Respectfully,

John Healey, Guest Editor
